Wood Kote Announces Addition of Gelled Linseed Oil Soap

Wood Kote has added Jel'd Lin Soap to its product line. The product is more than a cleaning agent. Wood Kote's new formulation is used as a lubricant in the oilfields.

Portland, Oregon September 16, 2008 – Wood Kote Products Inc. has a new medium pH gelled (jelled) Linseed Oil Soap sold under the trade name, Jel'd Lin Soap™. The product is an easy to use cleaning agent for a variety of materials including leather, painted surfaces, paint brushes, stainless steel and porcelain. Jel'd Lin Soap is also used as lubricant where, for environmental or assay reasons, petroleum-based products are not appropriate. The product is especially functional as a lubricant in exploratory drilling.

Jel'd Lin Soap is manufactured using a traditional saponification process. The product contains no fragrances or chelating compounds. Jel'd Lin Soap is available in quart, gallon and 5-gallon plastic containers. The product can be purchased through recognized Wood Kote dealers or directly from the factory.

Wood Kote began manufacturing Lin Soap, linseed oil soap, in 1994 when it acquired Sta-Wax Chemical Corp. Lin Soap had previously been sold under the trade name "Lin Sol." Jel'd Lin Soap joins the family of other Wood Kote specialty products which includes Sta-Wax® wood polishes, C-U-2™ glass cleaner and traditional Lin Soap™, concentrated and ready-to-clean. The addition of Jel'd Lin Soap strengthens Wood Kote's position as the world's largest manufacturer of linseed oil soap.
